UNITED STATES SENATE,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
June 3, 1955.

HON. RICHARD M. NIXON,
President of the Senate
Washingto, D. C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: On today, during the recess of the Senate from yesterday until Monday next, I have received by me the attached sealed envelope, addressed to the President of the Senate of the United States, said to contain a veto message on S. 143, an act for the relief of Kurt Glaser.

I am herewith delivering to you the said message for presentation to the Senate at its session on Monday next.

Very respectfully,
FELTON M. JOHNSTON,
Secretary of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore.
FRIDAY, JUNE 3, 1955, being the last day of the period prescribed by the Constitution for action by the President on the bill, the Secretary of the Senate, under a decision of the Court of June 1, authorized to receive the veto message for action by the Senate thereon.

The clerk will read the veto message of the President.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

To the Senate:
I return herewith, without my approval, S. 143, for the relief of Kurt Glaser.

The bill would accord permanent residence immigration status to a native of Czechoslovakia who entered this country in July 1939 as an exchange visitor under one of the programs authorized by the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1954.

All of the exchange programs are founded upon good faith. We can maintain them as effective instruments for promoting international understanding and good will only if we insist that the participants honor their commitments to observe the conditions of the exchange in the same way that they expect the United States to honor its obligations to them. On the one hand, exchange aliens must return to the country from which they came. On the other hand, the United States must not permit either immediate reentry or other evasion of the return rule. Otherwise, the countries from which our exchange visitors come will realize no benefit from the training and experience received in the United States, and we shall fail to promote good will toward and better understanding of our way of life.

Unfortunately, the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act does not specifically obligate exchange personnel to return to the country from which admission was granted to remain there for a minimum period before being eligible to regain admission to the United States. Administrative requirements have been imposed to compensate for this lack of a specific statutory requirement. Within the last year, however, a number of cases have arisen in which humanitarian and equitable considerations have argued so persuasively against imposing such a requirement that the Congress has been willing to consider and to enact a number of private bills to adjust the status of exchange personnel. By permitting them to remain in the United States for permanent residence, these bills have granted them immigration status without regard to the normal procedures under our immigration laws.

Up to the present time, most of the circumstances which have led to the enactment of each bill have been exceptional. Even though I have recognized the principle underlying each bill was at variance with the concept and philosophy of the exchange programs, I have not been willing to require deportation at the possible risk of creating undue hardship and, in several cases, jeopardizing the safety of the individual concerned.

Such considerations are not present in the case of Mr. Glaser. I am satisfied
