HOUSE BILLS DISAPPROVED AFTER SINE DIE ADJOURNMENT

The President of the United States, subsequent to the sine die adjournment of the Congress, transmitted to the Clerk of the House a list of bills disapproved, together with his reasons for such ac- tions, as follows: On August 12, 1955: E. J. ALBRECHT CO.

H. R. 1393. I have withheld my approval from the bill (H. R. 1393) "For the relief of the E. J. Albrecht Co."

The bill directs the Secretary of the Treasury to pay $12,000,000 to the E. J. Albrecht Co. as reimbursement for actual losses sustained by it in performing its contract with the United States for the construction of the outlet works for the drainage of the Little Tallahatchie River, near Sardis, Miss.

After an exhaustive review, the Court of Claims dismissed this claim as being without merit. While this decision was based on legal grounds, the case is re- viewed by the court in connection with its decision shows, particularly when taken in conjunction with the rest of the record, that there is no basis for affording relief on the common law grounds. From these sources it is clear that the overriding causes of the losses which the contractor sustained were its own acts or omissions and the weather conditions it encountered in the performance of the work. I see nothing in these circumstances giving rise to equitable liability on the part of the Government.

The continued success of the policy of awarding public contracts by competitive bids depends, of course, on the knowledge that successful bidders will be held to their bids with the same strictness as if they were made with private contractors. Receiving bidders of losses occasioned by the submission of bids that were successfully low because of over-optimistic or false statements about the risks involved would not only strike a serious blow at the integrity of the competitive bidding system but would be unfair to more provident bidders who might otherwise have received the awards. It would deprive the Government of benefits resulting from favorable circumstances occurring during the performance of a contract while requiring compensation for losses as a result of unfavorable circumstances.

There are no circumstances in this case that would serve to distinguish it from others wherein contractors with the Government have suffered losses for which the Government was not responsible. In view of this fact and in the absence of any equitable considerations in favor of the contractor, I perceive no reason to hold my approval from the bill.

Accordingly, I am constrained to withhold my approval from the bill.

Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The White House, August 12, 1955.

Stephen Swan Ogletree

H. R. 6332. I have withheld my approval of enrolled enactment H. R. 6332, 84th Congress, "To include as Spanish-American War service under laws administered by the Veterans' Administration certain service rendered by Stephen Swan Ogletree during the Spanish-American War."

The effect of this legislation would be to determine by legislative decree, contrary to the intent of laws administered by the Veterans' Administration, Stephen Swan Ogletree rendered at least 70 days' active military service as a member of Company G, 2d Regiment, Alabama Volunteer Infantry, and was honorably discharged therefrom. No benefits would accrue by reason thereof prior to the date of receipt of an application to be filed subsequent to the date of its enactment.

There have been a number of affidavits submitted in support of Mr. Ogletree's contention that he served on active duty during the Spanish-American War. These affidavits are all dated some 29 or more years after the occurrence of the events to which they relate. In some, the affiant could "almost" swear that Mr. Ogletree served with Company G, 2d Regiment, Alabama Volunteer Infantry. In others, the affiant states that Mr. Ogletree did serve with that organization. However, most of these affidavits are not consistent with the official records of the organization which show that any service of Mr. Ogletree with that organization was prior to the time that it entered into active Federal service. In addition, the statement of one individual, who was of the opinion that Mr. Ogletree did serve in active Federal service, was that the period the commanding officer of the company was J. H. Brasiel. The records of the company show that Brasiel did not command the company while it was in Federal service. Therefore, it is apparent that the passage of time has dimmed the recollection of the individuals who made these affidavits and that they have become confused as to the actual period of time during which the company was in Federal service or when Mr. Ogletree was a member thereof.

Military records pertaining to Mr. Ogletree show quite clearly that he was not a member of Company G, 2d Regiment, Alabama Volunteer Infantry, or that organization was in Federal service. The frequent muster rolls submitted on behalf of that organization, certified by the individual who acted as mustering officer, only show the men who were present with the organization but all men who were members of the organization during the period for which the records are absent for any reason whatsoever. The name of Stephen Swan Ogletree does not appear on any of these muster rolls.

Company G, 2d Regiment, Alabama Volunteer Infantry, was mustered into Federal service on May 31, 1898. During the Spanish-American War, regulations provided that before volunteer organizations were mustered into the service of the United States, the names of the members thereof should be medically examined to determine whether or not they were physically qualified for active military service. Retained records of the 2d Regiment, Alabama Volunteer Infantry, clearly show that Mr. Ogletree was medically examined in accordance with such regulations, that he was rejected for service because of physical disqualification at least 12 days prior to the time that this organization was mustered into the service of the United States, and that he was returned to his home at Eufaula, Ala., through issuance of a "request for transportation," which provided as follows:

Section 131 of the Legislative Reorganization Act, approved August 2, 1946 (60 Stat. 812), provides, pertinently, as follows:

"No private bill or resolution (including pension bills), * * * authorizing or directing the consideration of any legislative or naval record, shall be enrolled or considered in either the Senate or the House of Representatives.

H. R. 6323 would change the military records of Stephen Swan Ogletree. The Reorganization Act, supra, established the Army Board for the Correction of Military Records. That Board was established for the purpose of reviewing military records and recommending to the Secretary of the Army the correction of any such records, where, in the judgment of the Board, such action might be necessary to correct an error or remove an injustice. Upon the recommendation of the Board, the act authorized the Secretary to take corrective action. No application for the correction of the military record of Stephen Swan Ogletree has been received by that Board.

The Congress, by general legislation, has determined that cases of this character should be considered by the Army Board for the Correction of Military Records rather than by the Legislature itself. The affidavits which have been presented in Mr. Ogletree's behalf are entirely consistent with the fact that he received no merit in the claim for special treatment in this case. No such records, where, in the judgment of the Board, such action might be necessary to correct an error or remove an injustice. Upon the recommendation of the Board, the act authorized the Secretary to take corrective action. No application for the correction of the military record of Stephen Swan Ogletree has been received by that Board.
